WOMAN DENIES SHE MURDERED BABE; IS HELD

Confession Says She Abandoned Child While Alive

A confession that she was the mother of an illegitimate newly-born white infant, previously thought to have been murdered and abandoned in a thicket on the farm of Mrs. Tobias, Clifton and Wilberforce Pike, a mile east of Clifton, last Friday morning, has been obtained by authorities from Miss Ella Chaney, 26, R. R. No. 2, Cedarville, who is being held in the County Jail, according to an announcement Tuesday by Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall.

Miss Chaney was arrested late Monday afternoon at her home by Prosecutor Marshall and Sheriff Ohmer Tate and brought to Xenia.

The woman admitted giving birth to the child and abandoning it where it was found but denied strangling and choking it to death, claiming that she left it face down on the ground to die.

According to her alleged confession, made in the presence of Prosecutor Marshall, Sheriff Tate, Coroner R. L. Haines and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, assistant probation officer, the child was born Monday afternoon last week, although it was not discovered by William Bond, woodchopper, until last Friday.

She told authorities that she walked to a grocery at Clifton to obtain bread and coal oil, accompanied by her son, Delbert Andrews, 9, and that on her return she stepped into a thicket, where the baby was born. Afterward she continued to her home.

It is said she admitted that the child was living because she heard it crying as she walked away and that she attempted to conceal knowledge of the child's birth from the dog's mother, a widow, partly blind, who had previously told her it would be necessary for her to leave the community if she ever gave birth to another illegitimate baby. Her two children, Delbert Andrews, 9, and Omer Caney, 2, are both illegitimate, authorities say.

Prosecutor Marshall and Sheriff Tate visited her home Monday afternoon to question her. She was placed in the woman's ward in the County Jail. Officers were unable to break down her denial of being the mother of the infant but Monday evening she is said to have made a general statement of the facts of the case to Mrs. Anderson, who visited her at the jail. Subsequently a complete confession was obtained by authorities.

The condition of the body and ground had led authorities to believe that the baby girl was murdered the night before the infant was found.

Miss Chaney is being held in jail under the care of a physician and nurse and Prosecutor Marshall does not indicate Tuesday whether charges will be preferred immediately against her or what the nature of the charges would be.

ARREST SURVIVORS OF OLD GENNA GANG

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Pete and Sam Genna, two survivors of the notorious Genna gang that has played an important role in Chicago's crime history, today were the latest suspects to be jailed in the wholesale hoodlum roundup that has netted 5,000 hoodlums.

They were taken in a raid on an apartment building which police assert has become the headquarters for an alcohol ring which the Gennas are suspected of heading. Three others were arrested with the pair.

Pete, Sam and Jim Genna are the survivors of six brothers. The other three were slain at various periods in gang history.

Last week's crime drive netted 103 gun toters among the riff-raff of hoodlums, aliens, gangsters and holdup men, police announced. Twenty-nine of these have been indicted for gun carrying. More than 1,500 prisoners were taken over the week end alone.

COOLIDGE LEARN ABOUT TONY MORENO, GAS METER READER, WHO IS NOW SCREEN STAR.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 18.—Former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge today were at home to a distinguished group of Californians of the business and public service worlds after their arrival here for a visit to southern California.

At Hollywood, when the Coolidges scheduled a visit to the film studios, an old friend will be on hand to greet them.

He is Antonio Moreno, dark-haired film star.

When Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were living at Northampton, Mass., before he was governor of Massachusetts, "Tony" Moreno, a young Latin, used to read their gas meters.

"I am sure Tony has done very well," Coolidge said when he was informed by William Gardner, a Northampton neighbor, now living here, about "Tony."

Mrs. Coolidge laughed gleefully at the thought of the youth, who was taken to Northampton at the age of five, and there adopted into a family, having progressed so remarkably from the reading of meters to a place in the hearts of movie fans.

The schedule of entertainments for Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge today was arranged for several days ahead.

Still clinging to the remote possibility that the apparently doomed craft may yet be floated, Captain C. C. Graham and twenty of his crew remained aboard.

A brooches buoy, rigged from her mast top to the distant shore provided assurance that they can reach safety should the vessel show signs of breaking under the exposed gale.

As increasing seas began breaking over her stern yesterday, the last of the remaining seven passengers were ashore by a lifeboat. Later, the seas subsided temporarily and part of the crew was landed without difficulty.

FRENCH CABINET IN COLLAPSE; DELAYS NAVAL CONFERENCE

Doumergue Has Not Named Successor To Tardieu

PARIS, Feb. 18.—It will be another twenty-four hours before President Gaston Doumergue will be in a position to decide who shall be asked to form a new government to succeed that of Andre Tardieu, the French president declared today.

Emerging from the presidential palace after conferring with Fernand Bouisson, president of the chamber of deputies, the president made the following statement:

"We do not expect to reach any decision until tomorrow."

The greatest importance is attached here to the conference which the president will hold with former Premier Poincare this afternoon.

There is much speculation as to whether the visit will result in M. Doumergue asking M. Poincare to attempt to form a new government or whether he will merely consult with him in an advisory capacity.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—With France temporarily unable to participate in the naval arms conference a scheduled meeting today of the chiefs of all five delegations has been indefinitely postponed pending developments at Paris. Although French Minister of Marine Georges Leygues is still here, his role is virtually that of an unofficial observer and he is subject to recall at any moment.

It is not believed here that the fall of M. Tardieu will affect the present aspect of the naval negotiations other than to delay them indefinitely while a new government is established.

While a return of the Tardieu government is generally looked for here, a government headed by M. Briand or Poincare would make the French demands less stringent, it is felt in conference circles. Should an extreme left French party take command, the situation might possibly take on a slightly different aspect but this is regarded as unlikely.

Meanwhile the only thing the delegates at the conference can attempt to clear up is the Japanese problem. Here, however, it is possible the Japanese might feel little disposed to come to final arrangements before seeing how the French crisis would affect the conference and before knowing the results of their own elections Thursday.

As the situation stands now, Japan remains firm in her demands for what practically amounts to parity with the United States and Great Britain in submarines, light cruisers and destroyers while the French demands for approximately 725,000 tons have resulted in an ever-overhanging threat of all-around naval building.

Until the accredited French delegates put in an appearance, the conference has decreased from a five-power to a four-power parity, with Britain, America, Italy and Japan continuing their negotiations.

Italian Foreign Minister, Dino Grandi is meeting with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson this afternoon to submit the Italian naval memorandum. It will be made public tonight or tomorrow.

Before entering the diplomatic service, Moore was a successful Pittsburgh newspaper publisher. Before accepting the Poland post, he again returned to the newspaper field by purchasing two eastern newspapers.

SHERIFF CAPTURES TWO TAKING LIQUOR FROM LOADED PLANE
FREMONT, O., Feb. 18.—Sheriff Cal Shue was deflected today, for although he played a lone hand late yesterday and succeeded in seizing two men, two automobiles and 100 cases of "imported stuff," he failed to nick the prize—an outlaw run running airplane.

Acts on a telephone tip, Sheriff Shue went after his prey single-handed. He slipped upon a small red monoplane as six men were unloading a cargo of Canadian liquor from the craft into four automobiles.

The men saw the sheriff approaching, however, and scattered. The pilot of the outlaw plane hurtled into the cockpit of his craft and made a rapid getaway.

Two men were captured by the sheriff when they ditched their automobiles in attempting to pass the sheriff's car, which he had left blocking the main road. One of the men gave his name as Lonnie Rhinehart, 45, of Port Clinton. The other said he was Owen Kane, 39, of Cleveland.

More than 125 cases of liquor were piled on the ice, the sheriff loaded 100 of the cases into his car and destroyed the rest.

The run-running airplane, according to the two men captured by the sheriff, made a round trip an hour, carrying twenty cases per trip.

"For God's Sake Come Through" Says Death Suspect

WOOSTER, O., Feb. 18.—"For God's sake why don't you come through clean?"

This was the question which Charles Hanna, 50, shakily asked his friend, Earl Conald, 42, as the two men faced each other in a room at the Wayne County Court House here today. Each accuses the other of murdering four-year-old Melvin Horst on the night of December 27, 1928.

The "why don't you come through clean," remark, was the climax of an all night session in which the two men had been questioned almost constantly by Detective Ora Slater, Prosecutor Marion Graven, Special Assistant Prosecutor Walter J. Mougey and Sheriff Clark Shearer.

Conald, his face drawn and agitated, showing the signs of the merciless grilling to which he had been subjected every day and night since February 13, in connection with the alleged murder of Melvin, answered with an abrupt, "I do not know."

Conald still sticks to his signed statement in which he accused Hanna of murdering the lad. Hanna is as persistent as his pal. He declared that Conald killed Melvin Horst for revenge against Roy Horst, former marshal at Orrville, an uncle of Melvin, Horst had been active against Conald, an alleged bootlegger.

Hanna faced his friend this morning, after both men had been questioned in relays since yesterday afternoon.

Conald apparently was unmoved by Hanna's request to "come through."

Hanna was then taken back to his cell at the jail, and the investigators tirelessly continued their "hammering away" at Conald, a former railroad brakeman. The officials said that they would continue their efforts on Conald for most of the day. It was indicated that they believe Hanna has told "almost all" that there is to tell.

The searching parties, under the direction of Marshal O. C. Watts, at Orrville, have yet failed to find the boy's body. They have not begun their search along the banks of Sugar Creek, however, where Hanna declared the body had been buried January 4, 1929, after the first burial had been made in his back yard.

SHE TRIES TO BE AS FRIENDLY AS POSSIBLE WITH EVERYONE—SHE MEETS.

MARGARET SANTRY

By ALEXANDER SHERMAN Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—It takes a lot of friendliness to be program director of a radio station and, at the same time, hold down the duties of radio editor of a large metropolitan newspaper.

At least, that is Margaret Santry's idea—and the proof that her idea is workable is maintained by her unusual success.

For this youthful Jersey City maid, who pioneered in radio when radio was just advancing out of the crystal set stage, has decided ideas about her work on the air.

Being Friendly

"I've often been told," Miss Santry remarked, "that the best way to get along with folks is just to be friendly. And, believe me, I've tried my best to be as friendly as possible with everyone I meet—and that's the reason why I'm able to get people to broadcast on my programs who would ordinarily insist upon very large fees if they worked on commercial hours."

"I'm a great believer in feminism," continued this five-foot-two-inch disciple of womanhood forever, "and that's why I like to get women who have been successful, to broadcast on my programs. I believe that a woman can even be married and still pursue a certain definite career. She doesn't have to write or be artistic, or anything like that at all. But she can do things outside her immediate home circle, if she wanted to, and be quite successful at it, if she chose to be."

"When I first went into radio work it was as publicity director for a Y. W. C. A. in New York. I then tried to get over a message to my public and at the same time keep them so amused that the medicine of social welfare work, you might say, was sugar-coated by entertainment. And even now, I'm using the same principle, only I'm not discussing social welfare, but helping further the cause of feminism."

"It was Professor James Melvin Lee, of New York University, who first taught me that my best method of approach today was to be decidedly feminine. That if I ever wanted to get a newspaper job, be as feminine as possible—because, after all, editors are human. And, do you know, he certainly was right! Yes, indeed!"

Yes, indeed he was right, for if ever a young lady is a living example of the truth of her viewpoints, it is the self-same Margaret Santry. And you'd say the same thing, too, if you ever saw the beautiful new studio her employers have fixed up for her atop one of New York's skyscrapers, where daily, this hustling young dame puts her visiting celebs through the paces.

What Margaret Likes

Margaret Santry is tiny—but her fall-meets men. She just dotes on perukes—but they must be dainty in color. Her greatest kick in life is having her mother tell her how wonderful she is. She likes people—and most people like her. She wears tight-fitting cloche hats all the time and thus hides a most beautiful, close-cropped sheaf of blonde curls. She likes to talk.

WILL HOLD HEARING FEBRUARY 24 INTO FIRE TRUCK CRASH

A public hearing in an effort to learn the exact details and fix responsibility for the collision between a fire truck and an auto on S. Detroit St., last December 20 in which two young girls were injured will be held at City Hall, Monday night, February 24, it is announced by City Manager Melville C. Smith.

City Commission, which is attempting to discover some legal method by which the city may settle claims for damages arising from the accident, will appreciate the attendance at the hearing of any eye-witnesses of the crash, according to Manager Smith.

The collision occurred when a fire truck driven by Lieut. Kenneth Dice, returning to the engine house from the scene of a blaze, swerved to the wrong side of the street, speeding across the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing in front of a westbound train and crashed into an auto driven by Paul Galtiger, and occupied by two girls. The car had stopped on the opposite side of the crossing to wait for the train to pass.

Modern Medicine turns away from "DOSING"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for almost every human ailment. Then a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the better method of treating colds externally.

Mothers appreciate Vicks, because it checks children's colds without the risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs.

Adults, too, have found Vicks just as good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SUBMARINES

Agreement to outlaw the abuse of submarines probably was all that could reasonably be looked for at the London conference. Japan and France are immovably opposed to abolishing this weapon; and Italy, while accepting abolition in principle, conditioned it upon drastic reductions in other classes of ships. Great Britain took the lead in proposing the elimination of submarines, a position induced by her large mercantile shipping interests and her insular situation close by the European mainland. Our interest in the question is less acute.

The position adopted by the American delegation was that the abolition of submarines would reduce the requirements of the participating nations in other categories and would eliminate from future wars "the dreadful experiences of the past." Submarines, said Secretary Stimson, are objectionable because they are "a weapon particularly susceptible to abuse" and because nations possessing them are exposed to what might prove to be an irresistible temptation to abuse them. Against this position Admiral Takarabe, speaking for Japan, argued that it was not the submarine that should be abolished, but the barbarous employment of it against merchant shipping; and he pointed to airplanes, which no one proposes shall be eliminated from warfare, as equally capable of abuse. Submarines, said he, are essential to the defense of Japan's extensive and broken coastline.

The parallel drawn by Admiral Takarabe between submarines and airplanes does not greatly strengthen the case for the former, since the retention of submarines means that future wars will involve two weapons particularly susceptible to abuse instead of only one; but there is considerable logic in the claim that it is not the use but the abuse of weapons which should be restricted. A five-power agreement to regulate submarine attacks by the same rules governing surface craft would be a moral achievement. Whether or not it would stand the test of a war in which one or more combatants found themselves in desperate straits cannot be safely predicted. The chances that it would not, added to the dubious value of this insidious craft, with its costly internal consumption of human life in peace, as well as in war, argue strongly for its eventual elimination.

PROSPERITY: AN ANSWER TO HOPE

As a topic of the day no one can doubt the popularity of the word "Prosperity." The word is on the tongues and in the minds of millions daily. Some dispute its existence. Others assert it.

The word prosperity has an interesting fact in its history. Fundamentally, from its origin, the word means "an answer to hope." An effective popular definition of prosperity could perhaps be phrased: "Prosperity is that condition of economic affairs which the people earnestly hope will come to pass."

This origin of the word prosperity is borne out by Webster's New International Dictionary, which traces the word to the Latin prefix "pro," meaning "according to," plus the first four letters of the verb "sperare," meaning to hope.

If styles in women's clothes did not change, lots of people would have practically nothing to talk about.

If we had about one-fourth as many laws as we possess, and no precedents to speak of, what law we possessed would be worth something.

We have looked in vain for either wet arguments or dry arguments that were not advanced years ago. Most of the orators even clothe their remarks in new verbiage.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

TRAINING TRAMPS

Word from Exeter, England, tells us that a country mansion may be turned into a school for vagrants. The number of unemployed men in England has produced thousands of tramps. It is proposed at this school to give them industrial training and find jobs as fast as possible. As a rule it is the unskilled man who is out of work. The man who knows how to do something may be idle part of the time, but usually not for long.

If grown-up people had the salesmanship necessary to sell young folks the value of schooling, training, trade learning, a government would not have to worry about teaching tramps. The stage of vagrancy is an advanced stage. When a man reaches it he is a long way down the road.

RELAXATION

William Muldoon, who has spent much of his life in the business of putting men in good physical condition, says the average man is only 10 per cent efficient. He rushes around so fast from one thing to another that he uses up his nervous energy. Hurry is killing him. What the average man needs, says Muldoon, is not activity, but rest and relaxation.

WORK AND REST

Speaking of work, rest and relaxation, it is probably the average man's method of work more than the amount of work that wears him out. When his job, his duties, his problems excite him, annoy him, irritate him, he uses vast quantities of nervous energy. And nervous energy is limited in all of us. It is like a bank account. If we keep drawing on it we have to keep adding to it. Otherwise it will be gone to the last penny. We add to it by food, sleep and moderate, regular habits. Those things build up the bank account. We waste it by fussing, by worry, by needless conflicts. It's not the amount of work that wears men out. It's the manner of approach and the manner of the doing. After all, so few things matter.

THE FIXERS

The average man who has quite a bad habit, who has in some particular reformed soon starts blowing his horn. He almost instantly begins to boast about his own high-mindedness. The next step is to get others to sign up to be like himself. Few of us are interested in helping others approach the ideal. We are more interested in having others conform to OUR way. We so easily mistake our program for the right program and set out to get converts. The trouble with most reformers is that they do not wish to reform people. They wish to make others like themselves.

Folks who go about preaching, "be like I am," are usually stupid and often offensive.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

"Why was the assassination of Prince Humbert, of Italy, recently attempted? Why was his marriage to Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium opposed? And by whom? Is the princess a born Catholic?" queries a reader of the Question Box.

Some political ultra-radicals think they weaken the institution of royalty by killing royal personages, and the recent Italian-Belgian wedding ceremonies afforded an opportunity to get at one. Because of the dictatorship over their country, anti-Catholic Italians are especially discontented just now, too. The Italian and Belgian royal families both are of the Roman Catholic faith.

Our New Money

What information is available concerning the new, small-sized paper money?

The new currency's substitution for the old, began July 10, 1929, is progressing rapidly. The exchange involves about five billion dollars, or nearly 900 million pieces. The saving, through the reduction in the bill's size, is about $56,200 yearly, for the public debt service. The paper is of a type used only by the government.

Lame Ducks

What are lame duck congresses? Why should they be abolished?

Congressional elections are held in November. Congressional terms do not expire until next March. A congressman who is beaten in November is called a lame duck while finishing his term. Some people think it too long for an officeholder to serve after the voters have expressed their wish for a change.

Gutenberg Bible

Would you please tell me who Gutenberg is? What is a Gutenberg Bible? Where was it printed and in what year?

John Gutenberg was born in Mainz, Germany, in 1410. He was the first man to invent the art of printing with movable type. After borrowing sufficient money to buy printing material he set out to work on a large Latin Bible, the printing of which was completed in 1455. This Bible is known as the Gutenberg Bible.

Unjust to Asiatics?

Why is Chinese, Japanese and other Asiatic immigration absolutely excluded from America, while Europeans are admitted? Is it not unjust?

The Chinese originally were excluded because their labor's cheapness threatened American wages. The law was intended to include all Asiatics on the further grounds that, as a different race, they never can blend with whites and become real Americans. The theory is that Europeans, admitted gradually, are assimilable. However, Asiatics do consider it unjust.

I head tea with a stout lit'ry lady the other day and the spoon she handed me to operate with bore the insignia of the New Yorker hotel. I didn't say anything, but before leaving, I adroitly not to say gracefully, transferred the spoon from my saucer to my pocket.

I recalled, at the recent opening of the hotel, the howl to heaven let loose by Ralph Hitz, general manager, over the raid invited guests had made on the silver, coffee pots, lamps and even telephone sets.

I took the spoon for the purpose of returning it to Ted Saucier, genial, talented and urbane publicity director of the inn. I gave the spoon to The Duchess to mind for me till I got around to mailing it to Ted. She used it at a coffee klatch last Thursday, and—presto, the spoon disappeared.

I feel that I owe both the stout lit'ry lady and Ted Saucier an apology, herewith tendered.

ANOTHER CHICAGO "LOOP"

Home Brewing Denounced by Wet As Dry Congressman Defends It

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach of Newark, N. J., a sopping wet member of congress, made a speech recently. It was in answer to a speech by Representative Franklin W. Fort of East Orange, N. J., a bone dry member of congress.

Home brewing is all right, according to Representative Fort.

Home brewers ought to be put in jail, according to Representative Lehlbach.

Yes, that's correct, Representative Fort (dry) defended home brewing. Representative Lehlbach (wet) denounced it. It does sound contradictory, but there is no doubt about it.

The truth is that quite a few dries have agreed all along with Representative Fort, without fully realizing it; that a considerable number of wets have been getting over late-ly to Representative Lehlbach's side of the argument.

However, it took the two Jersey-men's pair of speeches, one right after the other, to accentuate the strange situation, for all congress to see and marvel at.

The row was something terrible for a while, during which wets and dries were trying to re-classify themselves after Fort and Lehlbach had finished.

The Fort-Lehlbach difference of opinion arises out of conflicting interpretations of the "non-intoxicating" and "fruit juices" clause in the Volstead act.

The statute first specifies the pains and penalties (now made still severer under the terms of the Jones five-and-ten law) to be imposed for violation of the Eighteenth amendment—but then it provides that none of these consequences shall be visited upon home manufacturers of "non-intoxicating" and "fruit juices" exclusively for home consumption.

But why make that exception?—considering that the manufacture of non-intoxicants is not forbidden; so of course it cannot be punished. The enforcement experts long ago pondered this problem. They decided the law must mean that cider and fruit juice making is legal in the home, if the cider and fruit juice are non-intoxicating in fact, regardless of the one-half of one per cent limit.

Thus Representative Fort took the position in his speech that home brew is permissible—as to hard cider and wine with a kick in it, anyway.

Believe me, this view kicked up a row in this circle.

It got so bad that finally Fort had to issue what politicians call a "clarifying statement," to prove that he had not gone over to the wets. On due consideration a certain element among the dries inclines now that sassy remark to Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker.

"Don't you love the moments, just before dinner, when the cocktails are served?" said Hoffenstein.

"I used to make a practice of getting married just to have those cocktail times every evening. I hope you don't mind my talking about myself like this?"

"No," replied the author of "Enough Rope." "I love it."

Once during the talk Dorothy dropped her eyes and Hoffenstein gallantly picked them up and returned them to her.

Finally she arose and swept out the room and he got up and dusted.

to believe the representative is right, —that prohibition will be easier to enforce if home brew is recognized as legitimate. By no means all the dries make this concession, but some do.

It so happens, however, that a home brewer was convicted under the Volstead law down at Richmond, Va., a few months ago.

The culprit's defense was that his home was non-intoxicating in fact, even though he admitted it exceeded one-half of one per cent, where as the jury insisted that it not only exceeded one-half of one per cent, but really was intoxicating. It was 10 or 12 per cent, if I remember rightly. Not a very high content, but certainly sufficient to intoxicate in adequate quantity.

Nevertheless, being puzzled by this conviction, considering the "cider and fruit juice" clause, I hastened to the office of Chief Counsel James J. Britt of the prohibition bureau, to investigate.

"A householder," said Chief Counsel Britt, "assuredly is entitled to manufacture non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices in his home, and by 'non-intoxicating' I mean non-intoxicating in fact, regardless of the alcoholic percentage."

"But the minute his beverage rises above one-half of one per cent it is up to him to prove, if arrested, that it is non-intoxicating in fact."

"That question it is for a jury to determine."

Representative Lehlbach's contention, in his speech, was that the latitude between one-half of one per cent and 100 per cent is so wide that a jury is liable to determine almost anything.

Lehlbach maintained that, in reality, the "cider and fruit juice" clause does not amount to anything—that not one home brewer in 1,000 even knows how to manufacture a beverage which, if alcoholic at all, will not readily intoxicate—and that jail is the place for them if Volsteadism is enforceable.

Harsh enforcement is what Lehlbach demands, too, his theory being that plenty of it will lead to repeal in short order.

But my! how the wets did jump on Representative Lehlbach!

The result was that he also had to issue a clarifying statement, which likewise made a number of converts to his philosophy, just as Fort's had made, the other way.

All in all, the wet-and-dry row is something fearful and wonderful.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have written to you before, but it wasn't answered. I will take time to write again, hoping to see it in print."

"I am a young married woman, have been separated from my husband for nearly five months. During that time I have met a young man who is simply wild about me. And I am just as crazy about him. He is 24 years old. He hasn't gone with anyone else since he met me, but has gone with me steady. He does not drink, curse or gamble. He wants to settle down and live with me."

Dear Virginia, what is your advice? Please answer as soon as you can. I am puzzled. Celia, puzzled to know how you happened to be married, and if you were as "crazy" about your husband as you say you are about this young man. Puzzled about the apparent lightness which you marry and separate and love again. And am wondering how you are going to know if this "love" will last for life, if you marry again.

Also, what has become of your husband, and what he thinks about it all. Whether he is also "crazy" about some one else.

If you are sure, in your own mind, that you are really in love, that you can be true to one man and that he is the one for you, I suppose you will try it again. Get your divorce and marry. But if you are not sure—or even not quite sure—better leave matrimony alone for a while and try to develop steadfastness of purpose and responsibility.

Sorry that I could not answer before. I am doing 'the best I can to take care of as many letters each day as possible.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: We are two girls working in an office."

"Krick! Krick! Krick!"

What was wrong with the Katy Did who had kept his feet on the ground while his little companion had gone up in the air? He made a great to-do, scolded her and even went so far as to shake his feelers in her face. Goodness gracious, but he must be very, very angry! The insects felt little shivers running up and down their backs. What was going to happen next! Nothing much did, that is, nothing terrible. The flighty Katy Did again spread her lacy wings and dipped and swayed before the cross one. And so graceful was she, so altogether lovely that the fellow couldn't remain grumpy long. Suddenly a broad grin spread over his insect face and he patted the flighty one on the back and said so all could hear:

"Krick! Krick! Krick!"

But what do you think? As the flighty one made ready to rest, the grumpy one lost his temper again and once more the flighty one danced to please him.

"Katy Did!" cried the grumpy one—for that is what "krick, krick," means! And then "Krick! Krick!" (Krick, krick, means that, too!)

The fellow changed his mind so often that the audience half expected his lady fair to drop with sheer weariness. But she didn't. And after a while the grumpy one grew tired of contradicting himself with no voice to oppose him. He held out a gallant wing to his lady fair helped her spread her green mantle about her. Then wing in wing, waffling kisses to the crowd, the two skipped nimbly off the stage. When they had gone a short distance they rose into the air and flew off into the cool deep grass that grew on the brookside.

"Say, Biffer, what did Katy do?" demanded Peter, surprised that the play was over.

"Who knows?" replied the Gun Beetle. "Nobody in insect land that I ever heard of!"

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Diets Not Unpleasant

"DEAR DOCTOR. A few months ago I wrote for your reducing pamphlet. I'll admit it: I really did not have the grit to begin the three-day liquid diet, so postponed my reduction. Recently you wrote that obesity was simply a pre-diabetic state, and then there I was now or never. Why, I was never so pleasantly surprised in my life! It was so easy, and I never suffered a pang of hunger. I really enjoyed that three days. Now I do not taste nor eat between meals (that was my chief sin). I am hungry when meal times come, but do not have any gnawing which I always had before when I tried to diet. I can readily see now that my diet before was unbalanced. My nerves were better, and I'm so full of pep and joy of life! After only three weeks, I have lost nine pounds, I'll write you when I am down to normal. Thank you so much, and may your message reach others as it did me. MRS. M."

The three-day liquid diet, amounting to not more than 500 to 600 C. a day, certainly does give a wonderful start. You not only lose from 5 to 10 pounds (part of this is water that your tissues had to hold before to dilute the excess food products in your blood and tissue fluids), but your stomach contracts so that your reducing diet of 1,000 or 1,200 C. seems like a feast. However, it is not really necessary to go on this three-day period, so don't postpone reducing simply because of it. You can start immediately on your reducing number (900 to 1,000 C. if you are short and inactive, and 1,200 to 1,400 if you are tall).

Yes, overweight must be a pre-diabetic state in many, for it is so frequently present (in adults) before diabetes is manifested. Not long ago, I heard Dr. Elliott P. Joslin (a specialist in diabetes) at a medical society. I'll give you some of the notes I took:

In a series of 100 of his recent cases, over the age of 40, there were 97 who had been overweight before the disease came on. You see, this makes the percentage in a series of seven patients of 60 years of age, all had been overweight, making obesity present 100 per cent of these cases!

Some physicians believe it there may be an inherited tendency to diabetes in those who have but keeping the weight normal prevents its developing.

As most everyone knows, diabetes is very high in the Jew race. This is solely because of the very generous, right diet and the spirit of hospitality, which is pressed in offering every visitor a generous amount of food and partaking of it themselves. Therefore they become overweight. There is no greater coincidence of diabetes among Jewish children than there is among Gentile children, however.

So, Mrs. W., you were wise to fully muster up will power to start reducing. And, by the way, we have to consider that it is "won't" power as much as will power—"I won't that candy; I won't take that extra slice of bread and butter; I won't take rich desserts, etc." (The pamphlet which Mr. M. followed was obtained by following column rules. For those who are interested, we have also a book of books on diabetes, written by authorities for the laymen.)

Our pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders gives a simple test for detecting the presence of sugar in the urine.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand may be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following "mail charge" to help cover cost of printing and handling for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, one cent in coin. The pamphlets are "Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene, Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders." Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

R. E. B.: Yes, your marriage is legal.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: We are two girls working in an office."

"Krick! Krick! Krick!"

What was wrong with the Katy Did who had kept his feet on the ground while his little companion had gone up in the air? He made a great to-do, scolded her and even went so far as to shake his feelers in her face. Goodness gracious, but he must be very, very angry! The insects felt little shivers running up and down their backs. What was going to happen next! Nothing much did, that is, nothing terrible. The flighty Katy Did again spread her lacy wings and dipped and swayed before the cross one. And so graceful was she, so altogether lovely that the fellow couldn't remain grumpy long. Suddenly a broad grin spread over his insect face and he patted the flighty one on the back and said so all could hear:

"Krick! Krick! Krick!"

But what do you think? As the flighty one made ready to rest, the grumpy one lost his temper again and once more the flighty one danced to please him.

"Katy Did!" cried the grumpy one—for that is what "krick, krick," means! And then "Krick! Krick!" (Krick, krick, means that, too!)

The Junior Baseball Handbook of the American Legion containing the official rules and guide for the 1930 competitions is now ready for distribution free of charge to anyone interested. It has been announced at national headquarters.

The American Legion has set a goal of 500,000 as the number of boys to be reached by the Junior Baseball World Series that is conducted annually under the supervision of the Americanism division and George E. Dignam Post, American Legion of Fairfield and Ashorn, is expected to sponsor a team in the tourney again this year.

The new handbook has fifty-six illustrations and contains a comprehensive survey of the entire junior baseball movement. Among the illustrations are those of President Herbert Hoover throwing the first ball in the opening game of the eastern sectional finals held at Washington, D. C.; Graham McNamee, famous sports announcer, at the microphone of the National Broadcasting Co. hook up at the Junior World Series held in Louisville, Ky.; and Dan Sowers, national director of Americanism, greeting Judge Landis, at Bowman Field, Louisville, who had flown by plane from Boston to attend the sport event.

On the back page of the booklet is a poem entitled "Beyond All Things" in which Grantland Rice describes the man who played the game. Photographs of the winners of the Junior World Series and a number of outstanding teams which have taken part in the Legion baseball are included.

Among the subjects within the new booklet are the Junior Baseball program for 1930; the rules for the 1930 tournament; a word for team managers; helpful hints for team athletic officers; general information; review of the 1929 season; and the groupings for the regional and sectional competitions.

The rules covering the 1930 junior baseball world series have been greatly strengthened this year by helpful suggestions from the field which have been obtained by those interested through actual experience.

Co-operating with the Legion in its program this year are the National and American Leagues of professional baseball. From these two leagues comes the financial support which makes possible the holding of the regional, sectional and world series tournaments, the booklet states. The minor leagues have also given splendid support to the program in various ways.

Many outside organizations have helped by sponsoring teams of boys in the tournaments.

From the nation-wide interest being evinced in this yearly junior baseball program it would seem that the future of the organization should take steps to include the organization of a junior team in its program of activities this year.

Interest in baseball among the younger generation in Xenia has been dying out in recent years and the Legion would be performing a worthy duty if it could help revive it.

MAYOR KANY GREET'S FARM DELEGATES

Mayor Jacob Kany gave the address of welcome to delegates attending the sixth annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Producers' Co-operative Commission Association when it opened at Masonic Temple here Tuesday morning.

Edward C. Rector, president, responded with his annual address. Reports and appointment of committees occupied the balance of the morning session which was followed by luncheon served by women of the Second U. P. Church. A number of important addresses were scheduled for the afternoon session of what is believed to be the most important farm meeting ever held in Xenia.

EAST END NEWS

Members of the Twentieth Century Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Clark, E. Main St., Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

GRADE SCHOOL LEAGUE FINALS WILL BE PLAYED HERE SATURDAY

Final elimination series in the Intra-Grade School Basketball League will be held at Xenia Central High gymnasium Saturday morning and evening, it is announced.

One more round of play between the McKinley "A" and "B" teams actually remains on the schedule but this round will not be played inasmuch as the championships of the three grade divisions are already definitely defined.

The elimination series Saturday morning will start at 10 o'clock with the undefeated Spring Hill fourth graders meeting the equally unbeaten Spring Hill fifth grade quintet.

Regardless of whether it wins or loses to Central Junior seconds, the champion McKinley team will meet the winner of the Spring Hill fourth and fifth grade game for the city grade basketball title Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Central Junior High will play a preliminary in the evening. No charge will be made for witnessing the morning elimination series but an admission of 10 and 20 cents will be charged for the grade finals that evening.

The champion grade team of the city will be awarded a handsome silver loving cup and suitable awards will also be made to the Spring Hill champions of the fourth and fifth grade divisions, it is announced.

Following the championship final, a special committee will select an all-city mythical basketball team, composed of the outstanding grade players uncovered during league competition this season and members of this all-star aggregation will be presented with individual awards.

WILBERFORCE GRID TEAM IS HONORED AT RECENT BANQUET

"Mid-West champions of 1929," Wilberforce University's football team, were feted and toasted by one hundred admirers of the Green and Gold Friday in Arnett Hall dining room, from 6 to 10 p. m.

A six-course dinner, featuring roast turkey, good music and several short snappy talks made the evening a most enjoyable and entertaining one.

Attorney Sully James, Springfield, presided at the after dinner program.

President Jones, Superintendent Bundy, Mr. Jenkins, Mr. Shearin, one of the sponsors of the banquet and Dr. Leo Robinson of Springfield gave inspirational talks, "not theme of all being 'honor to football players, to students and to men.'" Dr. Leroy Bundy, the other sponsor of the affair, was detained by business of the Cleveland council and being unable to attend, sent his sincere regrets.

Gold and Alma Slater interspersed the program. Honorary Captain Tynes, spoke on behalf of the team and expressed sincere appreciation at the team being so honored, commended the past season and promised greater things for the next.

The high spot of the evening came in the surprise presentation of an inscribed sixteen-inch loving cup to Coach Harry C. Graves from the team, "a symbol of the team's reverence of its mentor, love for a character builder and honor to a man."

The presentation speaker expressed Wilberforce and the team's gratefulness to Coach Graves, "not only for his six years of earnest effort at bringing Wilberforce to its rightful place in the football sun but for the exemplary life he has lived in so doing, for his attitude of playing the game, not to win at any cost but simply to do his best and in victory or defeat in always being a man and a gentleman."

Coach Graves was reminded that he was enshrined in the hearts of every true Wilberforcean as the man who lifted Wilberforce from the depths of football despair, accomplished by efforts directed at building character and training men for useful lives who will be truly representative of Wilberforce's ideals.

CHICAGO CABBIERS BLUSH

Girl Bandits Now Force Drivers To Disrobe After Hold-Ups To Prevent Pursuit

STEPHEN WALCZYK

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Taxi drivers here are blushing to their ears, and seriously considering the advisability of wearing either suits of armor or suits of the surf.

Individually, their problem is distressing, for what's a sensitive fellow-a-go! to do when a pretty girl, armed with a seductive smile and a persuasive automatic, commands him to—disrobe? Especially the cases of Stephen Walczyk, Harry May, Joseph Damiko and Louis Tworek, cab drivers—and particularly that of Stephen, which is representative.

A Refined Fellow
Stephen is one of those refined fellows, the kind that never peeks into the front mirror to observe how his fares are behaving.

Imagine his surprise one chilly morn when his passengers—one a cute, dimpled brunette with laughing eyes, and the other a human behemoth informed him they were tough bandits. But his surprise was all compared to his embarrassment when the pretty girl with mirthful eyes leveled a gun at him and said:

"Take 'em off!"
"Take 'em off!" stammered Stephen, horror stricken.
Stephen's face turned red, for he

Rough Cut

AN 1870 method—for 1930 goodness!

It's surprising how much cooler, cleaner, and sweeter a pipe becomes, with Granger inside.
Cooler and cleaner, because of the slower-burning Rough Cut, and sweeter—there's the feature—because of an old-time tobacco-man's secret. "Wellman's Method" (used only in Granger) certainly works wonders in mellowing tobacco!
But—just try Granger in your favorite pipe, and let it speak for itself!

PLAN COMBINATION DOUBLE-DIRIGIBLE AND PLANE

A combination of lighter-than-air and heavier-than-air craft which will take the form of two dirigibles connected by an airplane wing is to be built immediately in Los Angeles by a group of practical men headed by Haakon K. Hammer, member of Amundsen's expedition which was the first to reach the south pole. It is designed to carry 120 passengers at a cruising speed of 112 m. p. h. It is powered with six motors totalling 3,600 h. p. A useful load capacity of 57,000 pounds is planned for the ship which will be 310 feet long and have a wing spread of 210 feet. Above, Hammer is holding a model of the ship.

CHICAGO EMPLOYEES RECEIVE FIRST PAY IN WEEKS.

There's a reason for these smiles since the wearers are employees of the financially embarrassed city of Chicago, receiving their first pay checks since last December. The salary was made available from the tax vehicle fund and the corporate fund. County employees are expecting pay checks since the announcement that Mayor William H. Thompson has consented to co-operate for the sale of 1930 tax anticipation warrants. Photo shows the workers lined up at the window of City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson.

COVER AUTOS BELIEVED USED BY FILLING STATION ROBBERS

Stolen automobiles believed to have been used in connection with robberies of four filling stations in Xenia early Monday when approximately $170 in cash and other articles were recovered by police.

On one auto belonging to a named Lynch living off of Monroe St. indicated, police say, the machine had been used by the burglars to carry away two round safes from the W. Main and S. Detroit St. filling station of the City Service Oil Co. Safes were taken to a shed in rear of the Union school, two south of Xenia, where holes chiseled in the bottoms and contents removed. One safe weighed $106.33 in cash and the other $54 in cash and $7 in checks. Markings of having carried safes in the rear, Lynch's car discovered abandoned near home within a few feet of the shed, where it was stolen. The car also found abandoned near spot where the safes were taken and robbed another car belonging to R. L. Shuey, stolen from parking place on E. Market St. The Lynch car, it is believed, is one which contained three men suspiciously watched by police about 3 a. m. Monday and eventually chased. The car displayed no lights and the pursuers lost trace of it in the darkness. Police have no clues to the identity of the burglars.

Police believe that the same gang of thieves was responsible for the robberies of two other service stations. The station of the Carroll-Binder Co. at N. Detroit St. and Painground Road was also entered and four flashlights were stolen. The empty safe was open and no money was taken.

A later report made to police disclosed that the Paragon Oil Co. station at Dayton Ave. and W. Main St. was also robbed of fifty pennies and some gas and oil. The pennies had been left in the cash register.

Police Chief M. E. Graham said he also understood that the barking of a police dog frightened would-be thieves away from the main offices of the City Service Oil Co. on Hill St. and that prowlers also visited the Stiles Coal Co. office although apparently no attempt was made to break into the building.

Poems that Live

"I TOOK A HANSON ON TODAY"

I TOOK a hansom on today,
For a round I used to know—
That I used to take for a woman's sake
In a fever of to-and-fro.

There were the landmarks one and all—
What did they stand to show?
Street and square and river were there—
Where was the ancient woe?

Never the hint of a challenging hope
Nor a hope laid sick and low,
But a longing dead as its kindred sped

A thousand years ago!

CITY'S NEEDS SUMMARIZED BY MANAGER

NEW FIRE EQUIPMENT IS AMONG PROBLEMS REVEALED IN REPORT

Predicts Separation Of Auditor's Duties From Clerk Of Municipal Court; Suggests Improvements At Sewage Plant; Discusses City Finances

Having had one month in which to familiarize himself with conditions under his control, City Manager McVie, C. Smith presented to City Commission at a special meeting Monday night a detailed report the object of which is simply to direct attention to the needs of the city, their purpose and the manner in which they are conducted and presents an outline of the whole city government showing each division of activity in its proper sphere.

The first division of the report is devoted to the manner of providing for public safety. The administrative force of the city is next dealt with, and is followed by a report on the provisions taken for safe-guarding the public health. The various civic duties of street maintenance and repair, sanitary sewers, storm sewers, drainage problems, etc., are treated under the general head of service department. The water department and the problem of the new state armory are treated in separate divisions. Franchises and utility contracts are discussed and the concluding section deals with city finances.

Manager Smith calls attention to the fact that the improvements of the fire department were purchased late in 1929 and that the only extra equipment added and paid for out of the general fund last year were two nozzles and suction hose.

"There will have to be considerable money expended on equipment in 1930 to take care of the department's needs. The greatest need of the department is new hose. There is now less than 2,500 feet of fire hose in the city. Of this, about 600 feet would have been discarded as worn out except for the fact that there is no other hose available. There are about 2,000 feet of good hose, barely enough to load the Sea-grave and White trucks. There is no reserve hose. The lack of reserve hose makes it impossible to dry the hose after a fire and necessitates reloading the trucks with wet hose. In a short time all the hose will have deteriorated below the point of usefulness."

The city manager disclosed in the report that he has made preparations to order 400 feet of hose at a cost of $500 and announced that during the year 1,000 feet of hose should be added, creating a sufficient reserve and replacement to permit proper drying of hose after fires.

According to the report, an order has been issued for frequent inspection of fire trucks and drivers to keep them under control at all times and that no speeding or dangerous traffic, this action was taken in order to prevent if possible a repetition of the collision between a fire truck and an auto last December 20 in which two girls were injured.

Manager Smith also said in the report that he expects during the course of the year to provide regular inspection of fire hazards, especially in the downtown area, and suggested that the matter of a fireman's relief fund should be given consideration by the commission and that some system of instruction should be provided for the fire-fighting force, both for the regular firemen and for the "minute men."

In a discussion of the administrative department, it is suggested that a change which will doubtless become necessary in the course of the year is the divorcing of the clerkship of the Municipal Court from the auditorship.

"The clerk," Manager Smith declares, "handles certain court funds and accounts which it is the auditor's duty to audit periodically and the commission-manager form of government is vitally opposed to such a condition. This matter should be given careful consideration by the commission and a change made just as soon as the Municipal Court justifies the added expense it would incur."

Asserting that at present the beds at the sewage disposal plant of the city are in need of a thorough renovating and re-sanding, Manager Smith said the cost will be approximately $1,500 and that this will be done as soon as funds are made available.

A problem of several years standing arises from the discontinuance of the Cincinnati Ave. auxiliary pumping station and the resultant use of surface waters, according to the report.

As far as Manager Smith has been able to discover there has been no practical solution offered. Temporary relief has been afforded by running the pumps of the old plant but the cost of pumping is exorbitant. This problem is of major importance affecting the health and welfare of a large number of residents and it deserves careful consideration and prudent action, the manager told the commission.

During the coming year the manager said he will carry out a program of re-working gravelled streets to keep them from developing ruts and deterioration.

Commenting on finances, the city manager points out that from all sources the income of the city which will go into the general fund will be between $50,000 and $55,000; that salaries of the administrative officers will take 20 per cent of the fund, police and fire departments together, 48 per cent; health and poor relief, 4 per cent; street lighting, 15 per cent; sewage, 5 per cent; janitor, fuel, etc., 3 per cent, leaving only 5 per cent or $2,500 to $5,000 for all other items.

This comment on finances, the manager said, is incorporated in the report only as a reminder to the commission that no increase in expenditures can be made unless there is a corresponding saving to counterbalance it.

"The manager is charged with the task of supervising the city's expenditures. A successful administration is utterly impossible unless we stay strictly within the limitation of available funds. The manager respectfully requests that the commission co-operate to the limit in supporting his efforts to give the city a sound financial supervision and a program of economy."

THE OLD HOME TOWN

CITY WILL NEED ADDITIONAL $500 TO COMPLETE ARMORY GIFT

City Manager M. C. Smith estimates that an additional appropriation of $500 will be necessary to complete the city's gift to the state of the triangular tract of ground in the Dodds Addition for use as a site for Xenia's new state armory.

Last year the city purchased twelve platted lots in the addition and donated the site to the state for an armory site. The city issued anticipatory notes for $4,000 for this purpose and of this amount a balance of $364 remains.

Manager Smith points out that the city guaranteed water and sewer connections and that tile and pipe have been purchased and are ready to be installed. The unexpended balance is not sufficient to pay for the installation of the sewer, he says.

On his bid of $511 for furnishing labor and materials in connection with contemplated repairs to the interior of the women's department at the Greene County Infirmary, Ed Humphreys, R. F. D. No. 8, Xenia, was awarded the contract by County Commissioners Monday.

Five bids were considered. Humphreys will give the walls and ceilings two coats of paint and will also varnish the banister railing.

Life Was a Misery
"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and run-down, could not sleep and had troubles which came at my age (forty-three). Life was a misery. Nothing did me any good until I tried the Vegetable Compound. I am on my third bottle and I cannot recommend it too highly. Why Folks Stay Fat

Not always because of over-eating, but because a gland is weak. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak one may nearly starve, yet stay fat.

Modern physicians the world over now combat this great cause of obesity. And excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the chief factors which they use. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. And countless slender figures everywhere now show the amazing effects.

Go try this right method to reduce. Stop starving. Read the book in the box with the formula and reasons. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola and watch the change.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Anna Garber, and her daughter, Martha Garber, 16, of Columbus, are in a serious condition in University Hospital here today following an accident late yesterday when their automobile struck a warning post along the highway east of here.

Mrs. Garber suffered severe scalp wounds and cuts and bruises. Her daughter was severely injured internally. They were returning from Portland, Ind., when the accident occurred.
